President Gloria Middleton is a Panelist on the Labor & Civil Rights Panel Discussion

This is an opportunity for New York City labor leaders to discuss the role of the labor movement in the fight for racial, social, and economic justice, and the work needed to continue moving forward together.

The panel discussion will include reflection on the last three years and the impact on working families in New York City and across the country, with a focus on the health care crisis of COVID-19, the economic crisis, the continuing crisis of racial inequality, and how they are all interconnected.
